

From: Peter Vessenes vessenes@gmail.com
Subject: Re: Still Jed?
Date: May 19, 2011 at 5:24 AM
To: Jed McCaleb jed@mtgox.com
Cc: Mark Karpeles admin@mtgox.com

---

Looks like we crossed each other in the mail;

I have no idea what the dollars involved are, as I don't know what your situation with Mark is, but I do firmly believe a small piece of the exchange is owed to me based on our history, our agreements, and the work we both did.

Equity vests were never part of any conversation that I recall; I think it's super, super clear from our emails that we had the rough of a deal, you put in a bunch of work, I put in some (certainly less than you), at your request, on basis of some sort of stock split, and that we had a similar understanding about what the equity results would be.

If it's true you sold the exchange, you went ahead and did that without talking to me, verifying with me that I thought I had no claim, or even telling Mark about me.

If the exchange were worthless, I certainly wouldn't be worried about it, but since it seems currently to have value, I would like to hear some perspective from its owners, whoever they are.

I'll sign off for a bit as I'm getting a little agitated. Mark, looking forward to hearing from you.

Peter